INTRODUCTION

The focus of this relatively small collection mainly pertains to the Civil War, reflecting the collecting interests of the man for whom the collection is named. It is particularly strong in materials relating to various activities of the Confederate States of America and the U.S. Army.

Researchers interested in coins and currency from that period will find a number of examples that may be useful. In addition, the collection contains a letter written by Robert E. Lee in 1869 to the Patrick Henry Literary Society of Goochland Co., Virginia.

Arrangement: The Alan Boles Collection is arranged into five series, and within each series folders are arranged alphabetically. The following headings represent the five series:

Correspondence, ca. 1861-69; Documents, nd; Financial, 1857-1925; Maps, 1943-67; Printed, ca. 1861-1965.

Provenance: This collection was donated by Alan Boles to the Greensboro Historical Museum in 1987. The archival material, donated simultaneously with an object collection consisting of 178 items, was assigned accession number 1987.143.179.

Processing: This collection was organized and the finding aid prepared by Francis D. Pitts III in December 1997.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

In 1987 Alan Boles requested that the Greensboro Historical Museum assist him in getting an appraisal for the collection of historical artifacts he had amassed during his lifetime. After receiving the appraisal, Boles donated the bulk of his collection, mainly items related to the Civil War, to the Museum.

SCOPE & CONTENT NOTE

Types of materials in this collection include coins and currency, circulars correspondence, financial and military documents, maps, and stamps.

The bulk of the collection pertains to the Civil War. Researchers will find an interesting assortment of items that shed light on various aspects of activity during the period. Of particular note are the documents relating to the Confederate States of America, such as the bond for five hundred dollars (3:2), the receipt and voucher from the Quartermaster's Department (3:3), and the Form of Oath (5:3). Also of interest are the documents pertaining to the U.S. Army. Included in this group are discharge papers (5:4), military passes (5:6), and General Orders, Numbers 27 and 78 (5:6-7).

The covers (1:1) graphically depicting Civil War-era sentiments are unused. They are interesting in what they reveal about those who produced them.

Though not related to the Civil War but also of interest, is a letter written by Robert E. Lee in 1869 to the Patrick Henry Literary Society of Goochland Co., VA (1:2). In the correspondence, Lee acknowledges the "sense of honor" he feels having been elected an honorary member of the Society, but expresses doubt about whether he will be able to attend, due to the distance he would have to travel, any of its meetings.

Of the coins, currency, and stamps in folders 3:1,4 and 5:5, the most interesting items are the Confederate, North Carolina, Greensboro Mutual Life Insurance and Trust Co., and USA banknotes and CSA stamps. In this group there are also commemorative stamps and tokens that may be of some interest.

The collection also contains a number of maps that researchers may find useful. In folder 4:1 are four reproductions of earlier renderings – two colonial, one Early National, and one Civil War -- and three originals. The most interesting of the latter group are two WWII aeronautical charts that identify "active air defense zones" and "danger areas" on the Atlantic coast of the United States. In folder 5:1 researchers will find the "New Historical War Map" (1864), which is a military map of the border and southern states. On the opposite side of the map is stamped the following information: "Price 50, cts. For the benefit of a ONE ARMED SOLDIER."
