Jackson Printing Company Collection, ca. 1946-2003 [bulk ca. 1946-1960s].
2 boxes (172 folders), ca. 400 items.

Note: The numbers cited in parenthesis, e.g. 1:3, refer the researchers to the Series#:Folder# in which that name/topic can be found.

INTRODUCTION:

This collection contains approximately 400 items, composed entirely of broadsides. All were printed by the Jackson Printing Company in Greensboro, NC. The variety of information includes advertisements and/or announcements concerning religious events, auctions, entertainment activities, grocery store produce sales, political events and representatives, and local business services. There is no information about the historical significance or practices of the Jackson Printing Company. The original and unique graphics created by the Jackson Printing Company do, however, present a valuable resource for understanding the work of a small Southern printing company during this period.

Arrangement: The collection is arranged alphabetically into twelve series, and then alphabetically within the series. The series are: Auctions, Beauty/Barber Shops, Churches, Cleaning Service, Entertainment, Grocery Stores, Miscellaneous, Pamphlets, Political, Repair/Hardware, Religious, and Service Stations.

Access Restrictions: Access is open, with certain restrictions on extremely fragile items.

Provenance: The Jackson Printing Company broadsides were acquired by the Greensboro Historical Museum in 2004 from Mrs. Doris Walker Jackson, and accessioned under 2004.26.3. The museum also acquired some three-dimensional artifacts.

Processing: This collection was processed by Katie Nash during May 2004-January 2005. Editing and final revision of the finding aid was made by Stephen Catlett during 2004-2005.

BIOGRAPHICAL / BUSINESS NOTE

James W. Jackson, Jr. (1919-2004), founder and printer of Jackson Printing Company, resided in Greensboro, NC for the majority of his life. Mr. Jackson had a brother, Theodore N. Jackson, two sisters, Ruth J. Culler & Rebecca J. Paschal, and his parents were James Weaver Jackson, Sr. and Novella Jennings Jackson. He and his wife, Doris Walker Jackson, were married for 63 years and had a son, James W. Jackson III, and a daughter Judith Jackson Faust.

There is not much known about Mr. Jackson prior to his graduation from Greensboro Senior High School in 1937. After graduation, he attended the Southern School of Printing in Nashville, TN. Sometime during the years of 1939-1945, Mr. Jackson served in the Army Air Corps for 22 months. After his service with the Army Air Corps, he was transferred to the Infantry division and resided in Germany following the Battle of the Bulge in December 1944 and January 1945.

After his service he returned to Greensboro, NC and in 1946, started the Jackson Printing Company business. He also opened the Jackson Coin Company ca. 1955. Careful analysis of the Greensboro City Directories beginning in 1946 and continuing through the early 1960s, shows that the Jackson Printing Company advertised a few specific job capabilities. During the late 1940s-1950s, the company performed tasks such as job printing, poster printing, rubber stamping, engraving, advertising, and other specialties. In the mid 1950s, the company added more tasks including publications, plastic binding, and laminating.

During the time he owned and operated the Coin and Printing Company, Mr. Jackson was a member of several groups and organizations, including the Greensboro Coin Club and Tabernacle Baptist Church. In addition, for 22 years he served on the Board of Directors for the North Carolina Numismatic Association. Mr. Jackson was also a lifetime member of the former Middle Atlantic Numismatic Association. He passed away in Greensboro, NC, on February 29, 2004, at the age of 85.

Biographical Sources: The obituary of James W. Jackson, Jr. was published in the Greensboro News & Record, March 2, 2004, on page B.6-B.7.

SCOPE & CONTENT NOTE

The collection contains only broadsides printed by Jackson Printing Company. The business was locally owned and operated by James W. Jackson, Jr., and was in operation for over fifty years. The bulk dates are from 1946 to the mid 1960s. There is virtually no information in the collection on the history of the Jackson Printing Company itself.

The collection is arranged alphabetically into twelve series, and then alphabetically within the series. Extensive in both content and number of broadsides, the series pertaining to Churches is also one of the most interesting. For example, within it is a broadside advertising Rev. Jerry Falwell's visit to Northside Baptist Church in Summerfield, NC, during 1972 (3:48, 3:48.1). Included in both the churches and religious series are broadsides that shed light on various church-related activities including: visiting evangelists from all over the United States [including Billy Graham in 1951 (11:1)], professors speaking from local Greensboro educational institutions, music by family trios and choir groups, and sermons involving crusades for Christ.

The Pamphlet series contains the most controversial broadside printed by Jackson. The first rule mentioned in the list of rules for the livestock and amateur horse shows for the Bessemer Community Center, in 1950, states, "Entries open to all white persons" (8:1, p.11). This statement clearly represents the issues surrounding racial conflicts during the 1950s-1960s.

Other noteworthy materials pertaining to businesses include broadsides relating to: Beauty/Barber Shops, Cleaning Service, Grocery Stores, Repair/Hardware, and Service Stations. Although each of the series is small, the broadsides offer insight into the existing businesses of the area and the specialty of each business. For example, beauty and barber shops advertised a variety of hairstyles, shampoos and conditioners, and other products revolutionary for people's hair during the 1960s (2). The grocery store and repair/hardware broadsides offer a glimpse of the cost of food items or basic repairs for hardware such as TV, tape recorders, and record players (6 & 10).

The collection also includes broadsides advertising a variety of Entertainment activities. Specifically, there were coin auctions open to the public taking place every Friday night at Jackson Printing Company (1:1). There were also “Rock ‘N’ Roll” nights at the Piedmont Lanes (5:4, 5:5). Other events included activities like, dancing, singing, and listening to the latest rock ‘n’ roll music from the local radio station WCOG (later WPET) (5:5.1).

The Political broadsides advertise candidates running for governmental offices in the area, mainly representing the Democratic Party. Of particular note is the broadside of I. Beverly Lake’s 1960 candidacy, which states that he is a “...sworn enemy of the N.A.A.C.P” (9:3).

Because this collection contains only one type of material, it is difficult to discern the total range of printing jobs that the Jackson Printing Company undertook. Another weakness is that there is no information on the types of printing methods, materials, or equipment used by the company during the years of operation.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

1. Auctions. 7 folders (9 items). ca. 1961-1964.

The printed broadsides in this series are arranged in alphabetical order by type or subject name. Most of them took place in Greensboro, NC, unless otherwise indicated. The majority of the auctions were held publicly, and most of them were of estate auctions. These broadsides present an interesting, but limited view of local social and material culture during the early 1960s.

The individuals related to the public/estate auctions include: Maggie Bayne Dixon (1:3), J.A. Goodwin (1:4), Mrs. Lollie Price Rippy (1:7). The primary items auctioned off included household furniture, farm equipment and tools, and household appliances.

Other auctions included in this series involve coin auctions that were sponsored by the Jackson Coin Company (1:1) or the North Carolina Coin Clubs Association (1:2).

Also included are business or organizational auctions such as the Greensboro Historical Museum (1:5) and the “Old Brick Store” (1:6). Their auctions listed items such as furniture, record players, household appliances, supplies, and farm equipment.

2. Beauty/Barber Shops. 9 folders (15 items). ca. 1963.

This series of printed broadsides is arranged alphabetically by the name of the shop or salon. Each Barber Shop or Beauty Salon is a local business, unless otherwise indicated. All the broadsides have a written overview indicating what each business offers pertaining to popular hairstyles, haircuts, and treatments for men and women’s hair during the early 1960s.

The Barber Shop broadsides include information pertaining to the cost of haircuts (specific types and non specific types) for men, children, and women, as well as the hours of operation, barbers, and location.

The Beauty Salon broadsides provide information about types of shampoos, haircuts, permanents, and hot oil treatments for women. Each Salon advertises its weekly or monthly specials, the beauticians, hours of operation, and location. In particular, Kaylin’s Salon (2:5) offered a wide variety of hair treatments such as blonde, brunette, red, auburn, and silver hair locks, a special shampoo treatment that washes away dandruff, and a unique cream for conditioning.

3. Churches. 82 folders (95 items). ca. 1948-1979.

This series contains broadsides, mostly undated, relating to churches in Greensboro, NC, unless otherwise indicated. They are arranged alphabetically by the name of the church. They advertise events taking place at churches, including: church functions (both religious and educational), visiting evangelists and pastors, musical events, and visiting speakers. It is a varied collection presenting a very broad view of local church activities during this period.

Of interest are the musical groups featured at church services and events. These include the Indian Singers and the Stewart Family (3:74, 3:75); The (Singing) Beacons (3:1, 3:81), and many other family groups.

Also documented are Evangelists and missionaries, both local/regional, and those traveling from across the United States as well as abroad. For example, Rev. Jerry Falwell visited Northside Baptist Church (Summerfield, NC) in 1972 (3:48, 3:48.1). At the time, Falwell was the pastor of Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg, Va.

An international missionary from Ontario, Canada, Rev. Vince Lohnes spoke at the Gospel Baptist Church in Greensboro, NC (n.d.) (3:19). Another example, Michael Chrismon was sent to Israel as a missionary by the Church Street Baptist Church (n.d.) (3:12).

4. Cleaning Service. 2 folders (2 items). n.d.

This series is the smallest in the collection. The folders are arranged alphabetically by the name of the cleaning business. The two broadsides represent the general cost of cleaning and the types of methods used to clean various materials.

Specifically, the Perkins Carpet Cleaning Service (4:1) advertises a “damp cleaning soapless method” that can be used on household rugs and carpets. Royal Cleaners in Lawndale Shopping Center, advertises the specials of the month for dry cleaning (4:2).

5. Entertainment. 9 folders (12 items). ca. 1955-1966.

The majority of broadsides in this series advertise musical events happening in Greensboro, NC during 1966. They are arranged alphabetically by the name of the place or the type of entertainment. This particular series sheds light on the various types of musical entertainment offered to the local population during the 1950s-1960s.

Of interest are the broadsides advertising the “Rock ‘N’ Roll” nights at the Piedmont Lanes, featuring musical guests such as the Pink Panthers, the Barons, and the Creators (5:5.1). Tim Parker (the master of ceremonies), from radio stations WCOG and later WPET, hosted the events.

Also documented are theatrical and musical programs from different schools in Greensboro. In 1955, Greensboro Senior High School put on the play “Of Mice and Angels” (5:1.1). Other schools such as Guilford College and Sumner School are represented in this series as well (5:3, 5:6).

The highlight in this series is a small booklet titled Uncle Henry's Scrapbook. Uncle Henry worked for radio station WGBG. This booklet contains black and white graphics of advertisements and photographs of individuals who worked for the radio station (5:7).

6. Grocery Stores. 9 folders (10 items). ca. 1953-1963.

Arranged alphabetically by the name of the grocery store, these broadsides advertise various grocery stores throughout Greensboro, unless otherwise noted. It is a varied collection that shows the types of foods consumed and the price of each item.

Of interest in this series are broadsides that advertise particular grocery store bargain days, and also stores that deliver to the customer. The two grocery stores that deliver were 3-D Curb Market (6:1) and Harrington's Self Service Grocery (6:5). In 1963, the grocery store with the most locations was Li'L General Food Stores, with five locations (6:7).

The most interesting broadside with the most graphics is an ad for the Food Palace, located off of Lawndale Dr. and Summit Ave. It highlights the special values on Del-Monte canned foods, with a creative western coral theme (6:4).

7. Miscellaneous. 9 folders (10 items). ca. 1959-1971.

This miscellaneous group contains a variety of advertisements with information ranging from Glenwood Fabric Shop, Krispy Kreme Doughnuts, to a photography studio. It is arranged alphabetically by the title or theme of the particular broadside advertisement.

A highlight in this series is the small booklet titled NC Household Goods Movers & Warehousemen's Association, Annual Convention. This business event took place in the King Cotton Hotel in May of 1959. Businessmen from all over North Carolina joined together to discuss issues concerning: "Ethics in Business", "Future of the Moving Industry", "Labor Relations", and other business-related topics (7:6).

8. Pamphlets. 16 folders (16 items). ca. 1930-1982 [bulk ca. 1953-1960].

The pamphlets in this series mostly contain information about Greensboro community centers and junior clubs, as well as members and sponsored events of each organization. They are arranged alphabetically by the title of the organization.

Of particular historical interest are the 1950 Bessemer Community Center and Guilford Community livestock and amateur horse shows. The rules and regulations outlined in each pamphlet documents this era of racial segregation. The Bessemer Community Center pamphlet states the first rule of entry as, "Entries open to all white persons" (8:1, p.11).

The Guilford Community Livestock show also documents details pertaining to the rules of the show for livestock owners and their animals, information on saddle classes, and various types of livestock and cattle (8:5).

Another interesting pamphlet in this series is the Student Handbook of the Agricultural and Technical College of North Carolina, 1950-1952 (8:13). Within the booklet are pictures of President F.D. Bluford, Nina Johnson (Miss A&T), William H. Gamble, Frederick A. Williams, Jerald M. Martena, and William E. Reed. The booklet also mentions a variety of information including: the history of the college, admissions, appropriate dress for multiple occasions, dormitory rules, student activities, and many additional topics (8:13).

9. Political. 7 folders (10 items). ca. 1960s.

This series is arranged alphabetically by the individual's last name. It contains broadsides advertising political candidates and leaders during the 1960s, who were running for government offices ranging from a City Councilman to U.S. Senator. A highlight in this series is a poster size broadside representing the candidate Bert Hall for County Commissioner (9:1.1). [See also: GHM Archives, Bert Hall Papers, Mss. Coll. #90].

Also documented are multiple broadsides advertising I. Beverly Lake's candidacy for governor. The passion and controversy surrounding this 1960 race is well illustrated in one broadside which states: "Dr. Lake is the sworn enemy of the N.A.A.C.P" (9:3).

10. Repair/Hardware. 4 folders (4 items). ca. 1950s.

This small series of broadsides is arranged alphabetically by the name of the business. They advertise multiple hardware and repair service businesses in Greensboro, unless otherwise noted. Even though the series is small, the broadsides offer an insight to the types of equipment and hardware needs of the local community. Of interest is the ad for Gaither T.V. Service. The owner, Lee Gaither did repairs on all types of record players, tape players, and TVs (10:3).

11. Religious. 2 folders (10 items). ca. 1950s

Contained in this series are broadsides advertising guest speakers at community revivals in Greensboro, unless otherwise noted. They are arranged in alphabetical order by name or type. In particular, this series portrays the Evangelical ministry aspect of religion and local church communities.

Of particular religious interest are broadsides relating to the Rev. Billy Graham's revival in Greensboro and the Piedmont area in 1951 (11:1).

Also of note, is a broadside advertising the "Miracle Child Evangelist" (Lavin J. Burcham) who came to Greensboro Coliseum's Town Hall to conduct a revival. The broadside states, "Called of God to preach at 5 years of age" (11:2).

12. Service Stations. 22 folders (31 items). ca. 1951-1973.

This series is arranged alphabetically by the name of the service station. The majority of service stations are locally owned and operated, unless otherwise noted. The broadsides advertise specials at each service station such as oil change, car wash, car wax, price of gasoline, and tire maintenance.

The most interesting broadsides in this series are the ones that have a photograph of the service station and owners. The two with photographs are Barney's Esso Servicenter (12:3) and Taylor's Esso Servicenter (12:18). The advertising and promotion undertaking by these businesses is highlighted in numerous broadsides, which contain information about winning prizes and free services.
